

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife (WDFW) provided funding for the research in 1992 and 1993 as part of the Puget Sound Ambient Monitoring Program; Dave Nysewander served as the contact for WDFW. Research in the Strait of Juan de Fuca in 1986 was funded by the Corps of Engineers, Seattle District. Heidi Anderson, Joyce Arafeh, Todd Chandler, Paul Cryan, Jim Cabbage, Kristi Deigman, Greg Falxa, Kiirsten Flynn, Alex Frid, Brett Johnson, Suzanne Kort, Brian McLaughlin, Allison Metheny, Dave Meister, Camille Speck, Karen Russell, and Zach Schwartz assisted with field work. Heidi Anderson, Todd Chandler, Kiirsten Flynn, Lisa Randolph, and Zach Schwartz and others helped with photograph printing and matching. Numerous people provided sighting reports of gray whales; Dodie Markey and Ben Reams kept detailed sighting logs in northern Puget Sound. The Whale Museum relayed reports of gray whales called in to the Whale Hotline and provided a summary of all sightings since 1977; Rich Osborne and Birget Kriete were especially helpful. Jeff Rash of the Marine Animal Resource Center relayed several reports of sightings. Research was conducted under permits from the National Marine Fisheries Service. The Whale Museum and the National Marine Mammal Laboratory designated us as agents under their permits for short periods while permits to Cascadia Research were pending. We thank the members of the Northwest Marine Mammal Stranding Network for information on dead gray whales (provided by Brent Norberg of the National Marine Fisheries Service based on Category "A" data collected by Cascadia Research, Wash. Dept. of Fish and Wildlife, Marine Animal Resource Center, National Marine Mammal Laboratory, the Whale Museum, and Portland State University). Rikk Kvitek dove to search for gray whale prey in southern Puget Sound. Richard Armstrong, Robin Baird, Ken Balcomb, Theresa Burg, Diane Claridge, Ken Culver, Marilyn Dahlheim, Jim Darling, B. Devine, John Ford, Pat Gearin, Dyanna Lambourn, Glen Lofall, Greg McPherson, Jannet Omura, Rich Osborne, Carl Prince, Tim Ransom, Pam Stacey, Eric Walters, Beth Williams, and D.R. Woods sent us photographs of whales. The Bamfield Marine Station, Bamfield, British Columbia gave us access to student reports. Kristin Rasmussen and April Rebollo helped with report preparation. Albert Shepard provided and drew the cover illustration. Production/layout was done by Vonda Witman of VisionSeed Publishing. We thank these people and organizations.
